His Galada

Chapter One

Mathelda's mum always finds him with a particular young woman. This occurred frequently.

Mathelda's mum tried to find out about the young woman and Mathelda (her son) said he intends to marry her. She was happy.

Then Mathelda's mum prayed saying: May God grant you your heart desires. And may he give you directions so you don't break and can't recover.

Mathelda: Amen.

Chapter Two

And thus Mathelda started dreaming of him and another young woman starting a family. It was Jantu, a distant friend he greets in passing. Mathelda didn't even have her phone number.

And God called her his Galada. Meaning the partner God wants you to marry.

Chapter Three

After reading and following news of war in a very distant country. Mathelda began to get scared. And then God spoke to him saying:

It is not fair for a person to work so hard and the rewards be granted to a neighbor. Go for your Galada.

God: Tell me Mathelda aren't you scared of divorce and all the bad recollections people give of their marriages.

Mathelda: I am very scared.

Chapter Four

After Mathelda's first child with Jantu. He started wondering: will this child be a troublemaker like Devilta who is making war in a distant country.

Or will he be like Baley who reduced the cost of their vehicles. He wondered.

Projects Man

Chapter One

Donelleha was happy. His father left him with enough inheritance to execute two projects or companies.

He then went through all his calculations which he did with a spreadsheet software and stored in his laptop.

Donelleha got a dream from God giving him the wage to pay for his workers. And announced that he, the God of men's bodies and plants, is also the Lord of Banks.

Chapter Two

Donelleha was depressed from that dream. And true it was that when God sets the wages the bosses weep.

Donelleha knew he had some limitations or what some would call weaknesses. And the God in his dreams always filled that gap.

Donelleha agrees totally that all men must pray. And it is known that for prayers to be answered then the laws and teachings of God must be adhered to.

And thus Donelleha executed only one project.

Chapter Three

A dream sent to Donelleha:

Have you noticed that your staff don't seem to know a particular subject? Send fifteen percent (15%) of your wealth to teachers.

Donelleha died with the execution of four projects. And his last project was a two component factory.

The Ghost of Dederai

Chapter One

Jantulala worked for Dederai. He enjoyed the job.

Since sadness is for everyone on earth and joy doesn't last long. Dederai died long before his time. The time which most die in his towns.

And true it was that Dederai was reaped early for the earth was created for Heaven and not for its own self.

Chapter Two

Dederai's widow then decided to conduct an exam for who will be the boss of Dederai's company. She went straight to Prayers to give her the questions for her exam.

She was too busy with her mall (a better type of market) which made her unable to handle her late husband's company.

Chapter Three

Jantulala then heard a voice without seeing anyone. He claimed to be Dederai and promised him that he would become the boss of his company. He should just sit for the exam.

Jantulala replied: if there are no transition notes I would not become the boss of your company.

Dederai: Why

Jantulala: Because ideas are difficult to come by and our God did not create everything in existence.

Chapter Four

Another visitation of Dederai to Jantulala.

Dederai: Wise you are. Sorry it's too late to give you written transition notes. But remember these points. Pray and ask God the number of workers you need per project. It is quite difficult to calculate by oneself.

Dederai: Some problems are matters of the Gods.

Jantulala: Thank you and please go on.
